

James Morrissey is a leading communications consultant. He is a director of several companies, including Fleishman Hillard and Newstalk Radio. A former award-winning journalist, he was a founder of The Sunday Business Post.

Previous books include Hot Whiskey (The Kerryman, 1989), On the Verge of Want (Crannóg Books, 2001) and A History of the Fastnet Lighthouse (Crannóg Books, 2004). He has been a regular visitor to Connemara since the early 1960s and visits Inishbofin and Inishark frequently. He wrote a book about Inishbofin in 1987.

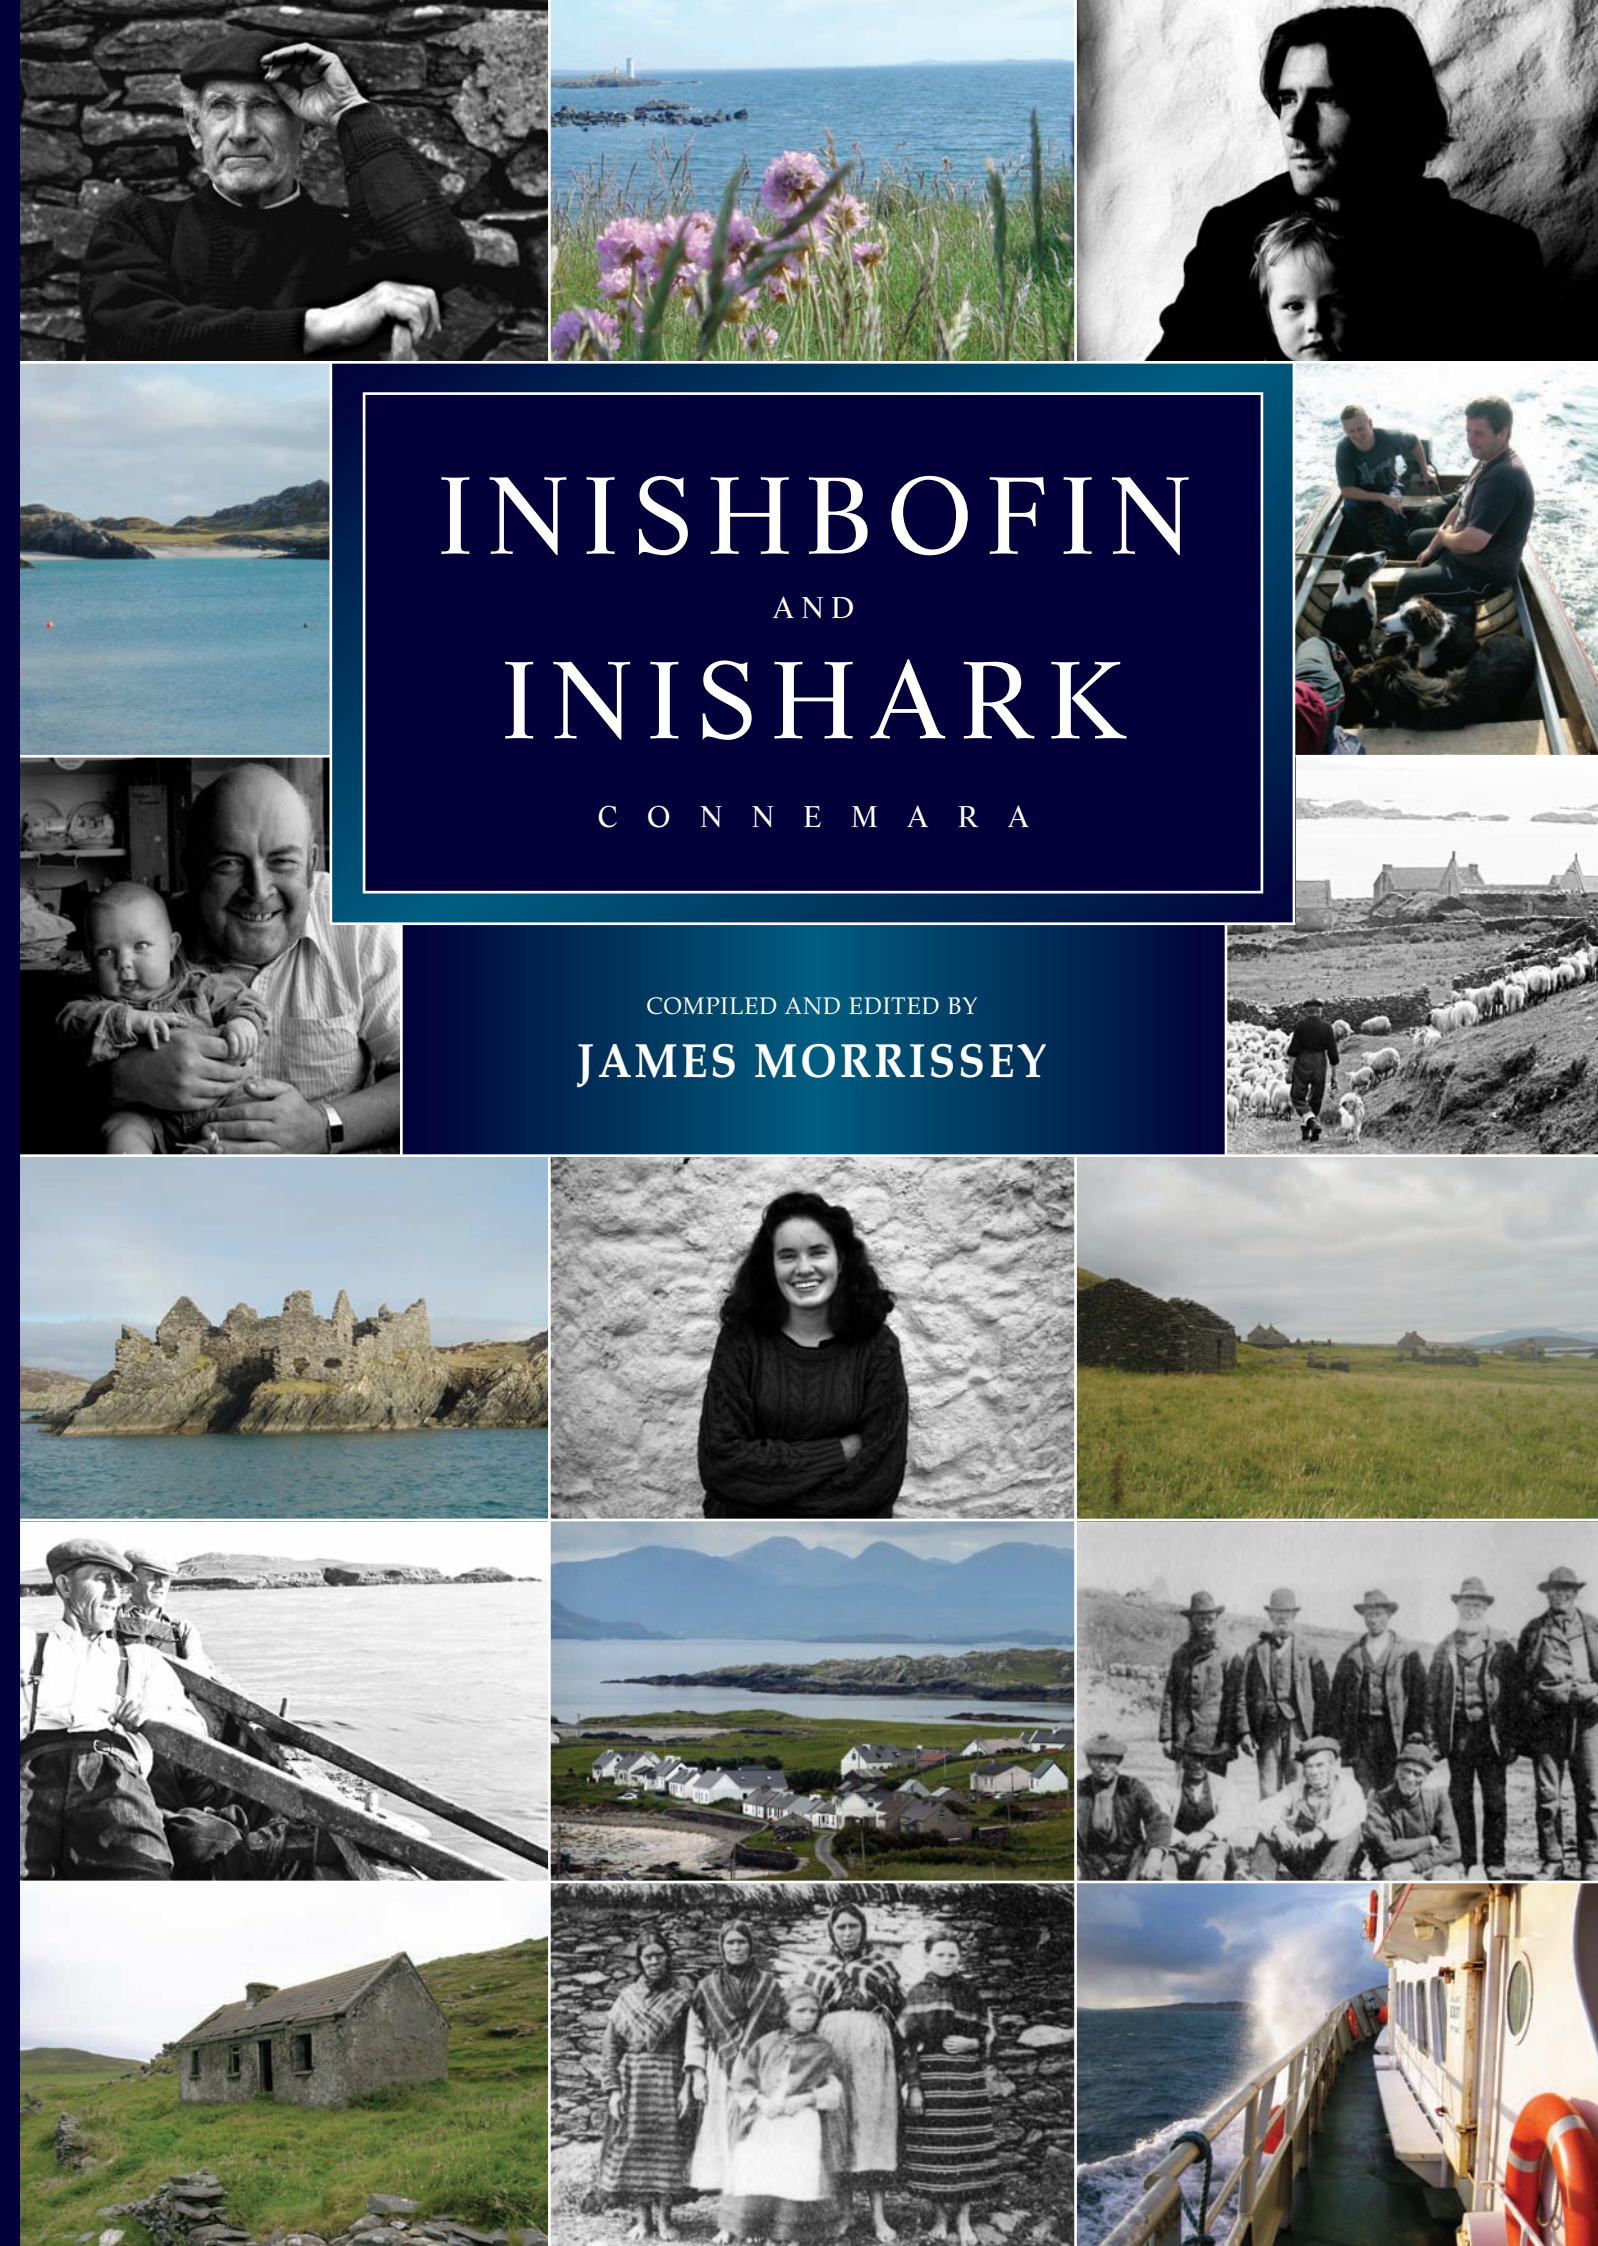

INISHBOFIN AND INISHARK CONNEMARA

COMPILED AND EDITED BY JAMES MORRISSEY

ISBN 978-0-9512826-5-6

9 780951 282656 >

INISHBOFIN AND INISHARK

CONNEMARA

COMPILED AND EDITED BY JAMES MORRISSEY

Inishbofin and Inishark lie approximately 3-4 miles out to sea, west of the fishing village of Cleggan, Co. Galway.

Inishbofin is a vibrant, thriving island, which welcomes thousands of visitors each year. It has a rich and illustrious past and offers the visitor everything from excellent cuisine to exhilarating walks to entertainment in traditional music and song.

Inishark was evacuated in 1960. It is a beautiful island where sheep graze and wildlife remains undisturbed. The roofless cottages and ancient chapel are a reminder of life from another era.

Front Cover (left to right from top left):
Photographs: John Carlos, James Morrissey, John Carlos, James Morrissey, Peter Corrigan, John Carlos, John Reader, James Morrissey, John Carlos, James Morrissey, John Reader, John Carlos, Royal Irish Academy, Peter Corrigan, Royal Irish Academy, John Carlos.

Back Cover:
Inset picture of cottage
(Photograph: Brian Farrell)

€25